

CascadiaNow!'s Rain City Slam project is seeking interns!

Rain City Poetry Slam is at the intersection of arts and activism in Seattle, both a competitive experience and a safe space for poets of all ages. Established in 2013 and focused on building community around art, we are looking to expand our online presence and teaching capabilities.

Communications Intern will be responsible for compiling, editing, and posting two videos a week on YouTube, as well as cross-posting to various social media platforms. You will have the opportunity to work and learn from a professional, expand your network, and build skills and experience to enhance your resume.

Development/Grant Intern will be responsible for finding relevant grants and presenting them to the Rain City board. You will then work with the board and a professional grant writer to learn the ins and outs of applying for grants to fund your non-profit.

-
- Rain City Slam holds all welcome, open mic poetry events every Wednesday at 8PM at Jai Thai on Broadway in Seattle.
 - The Rain City Slam Grand Slam on April 19th at 8PM at Hale's Palladium in Seattle features poet Paul Tran and decides which qualifying poets will represent Rain City Slam at the National Poetry Slam.
 - Rain City Slam hosts the second annual Hoodie Slam Finals on August 23rd at 8PM at Jai Thai on Broadway in Seattle. Beginning in May, poets begin qualifying rounds to be a part of the final to win a hoodie!
-

SAFETY STATEMENT

Rain City Slam is committed to safety in our community for all of our members. We ask that anyone entering our community in any capacity treat the audience, poets, venue staff, Rain City community members and featuring artists as equals. We refuse to permit any act of hate, violence or bigotry on or off our stage and microphone and will ban any person or persons involved in those acts. Any person whose safety has been threatened in any way should report the occurrence to a member of the Rain City Slam board. We will keep information confidential and anonymous and provide any support needed. Absolutely NO ONE is above this rule and inappropriate, dangerous, hateful or violent behavior is unacceptable for everyone.